Farewell to the KING

Arnold Palmer's Legacy Lives On in His Midwest Course Designs

He was a man so much larger than life, a man full of class and charisma, a gifted athlete, a successful businessman, a deeply devoted husband, father, grandfather and friend. He won 62 PGA Tour events and seven Major titles, and playing at the dawn of the television age, the charismatic, down-to-earth superstar helped create soaring popularity in the game he loved.

Indeed, there is little doubt golf is what it is today because of Arnold Palmer, the man we called The King.

Though we sadly said farewell last fall, when he died at the age of 87, Palmer's enormous legacy in golf lives on. For those of us in the Great Lakes region, his legacy literally lives on in the dozens of incredible course designs in the places we call home. Here's a brief look at some of his best in the Midwest:
